*On January 13, 2020, the Court lifted a previous stay in this matter. See Dkt. # 38 (lifting stay imposed by Dkt. # 31, which stayed Dkts. # 4, # 9, # 11, # 18, # 22–24, # 27–28). This was not the Court’s first stay of this matter. On November 21, 2017, the Court lifted an earlier stay. See Dkt. # 19 (lifting stay imposed by Dkts. # 8, # 12).

Many of petitioner’s motions are not titled or characterized as motions to amend per se, but they operate as such for purposes of the Court’s analysis. Two asterisks are used to identify these motions.

The vast majority of petitioner’s motions were filed pro se when petitioner was represented by counsel, but two were filed while he was unrepresented. Three asterisks are used to identify these two motions.

1 Having reviewed the memoranda of the parties and the record contained herein, the Court
 2 finds as follows:

3 II. BACKGROUND

4 A. Conviction and Petitioner's First New Trial Motion

5 The Court adopts the following facts from the Ninth Circuit's opinion in United 6 States v. Dorsey, 677 F.3d 944, 948–51 (9th Cir. 2012):

7 A

8 Between July of 2007 and May of 2008, Dorsey led a conspiracy to traffic in 9 stolen motor vehicles. To steal motor vehicles, Dorsey and his co-conspirators did
 10 “key switches” at auto dealerships. Members of the conspiracy would ask an auto 11 salesperson to start a vehicle. One person would distract the salesperson while 12 another would switch the key in the vehicle with a key from a similar vehicle. The 13 members would later return to the dealership and use the real key to drive the 14 vehicle off the lot. After stealing vehicles, Dorsey and his co-conspirators 15 removed their vehicle identification numbers (“VIN”) and replaced them with 16 other VINs gained from wrecking yards. They then registered the stolen vehicles 17 with the Washington Department of Licensing using fraudulent documents, and 18 finally either sold for profit or abandoned the vehicles.

19 As part of this conspiracy, Dorsey enlisted Martine Fullard to help falsely register 20 a stolen Buick LaCrosse. At Dorsey’s direction, Fullard registered the LaCrosse in 21 her name at the Department of Motor Vehicles. Dorsey gave Fullard about $200
 22 and told her the car would be registered in her name no longer than two 23 weeks. Fullard saw the LaCrosse only once.

24 In January of 2008, Seattle police began an investigation of the vehicle-trafficking
 25 conspiracy. Dorsey learned of the investigation, and sometime after Fullard 26 registered the LaCrosse in her name, Dorsey called Fullard and told her that the 27 police would probably contact her. The police in fact interviewed Fullard in March 28 of 2008. On May 7, 2008, Fullard was served with a grand jury subpoena in connection with the vehicle-trafficking investigation. She was scheduled to appear before the grand jury on May 15, 2008.

Dorsey knew that Fullard had been served with a grand jury subpoena. A few days before Fullard’s scheduled grand jury appearance, Dorsey told William Fomby that Fullard was going to testify before the grand jury and said, “Man, I got to do something, man. I’m about to go back to Cali.” Dorsey had previously been convicted of conspiracy to traffic in stolen motor vehicles and operating a chop shop and had served his sentence at a federal prison in California. Dorsey also told Diamond Gradney that Fullard and Tia Lovelace had received subpoenas and accused Gradney of being subpoenaed and not telling him. And, presumably referring to Fullard, Dorsey said to Shawn Turner, “That bitch better not testify against me.”

On the night of May 13, 2008, two days before Fullard's scheduled grand jury appearance, Fullard was cooking in the kitchen of her West Seattle apartment. At about 10:29 pm, seven shots were fired into the apartment through a window over the kitchen sink. Fullard's boyfriend, mother, and two children, then ages eight and ten, were also in the apartment. Three bullets struck Fullard and one struck her older son. Then two more shots were fired through a different window near the front door; they did not strike anyone. The gunshot wounds of Fullard and her son were not fatal.

Minutes after the shooting, between 10:33 pm and 10:42 pm, Dorsey made eight calls to police detectives from his cell phone. Detective Thomas Mooney received the first of Dorsey's calls to him that night just after he got the dispatch about the shooting at Fullard's apartment, at 10:29 pm. Mooney answered, and Dorsey told him that he was "at 23rd and Union" in Seattle and had found a man that Mooney was looking for. Mooney said that he had to go investigate a shooting and hung up. Then Dorsey called back and repeated that he was at 23rd and Union.

But here is the problem with Dorsey's alibi: Dorsey was not at 23rd and Union in the minutes after 10:29 pm on May 13, 2008. There is a dominant cellular tower at 23rd and Union, and Dorsey's cell phone call was not transmitted through that tower that night. Rather, between 9:16 pm and the time of the shooting, Dorsey's cell phone hit off of a cellular tower almost directly behind Fullard's apartment eight times and hit off of no other cellular tower during that period. Dorsey made no calls from his cell phone between 10:07 pm and 10:29 pm. At 10:33 pm, four or five minutes after the shooting and the time at which Dorsey called Mooney, Dorsey's cell phone hit off of a cellular tower near the east end of the West Seattle Bridge, far from 23rd and Union and only a few minutes' driving distance from Fullard's apartment.

The government filed a fourteen-count indictment against Dorsey and other participants in the vehicle-trafficking conspiracy. The government then filed a twenty-count superseding indictment and a twenty-two-count second superseding indictment against Dorsey. The second superseding indictment charged Dorsey

1 with one count of conspiracy to traffic in motor vehicles or motor vehicle parts in 2 violation of 18 U.S.C. § 371 (Count 1); two counts of operating a chop shop in 3 violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2322(a)(1) and (b) (Counts 2 and 3); seventeen counts of 4 trafficking in motor vehicles in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 2321(a) (Counts 4 through 5 20); one count of witness tampering in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1512(a)(1)(A),
6 (1)(C), (2)(A) and (2)(C) (Count 21); and one count of discharging a firearm
7 during and in relation to a crime of violence in violation of 18 U.S.C.
8 § 924(c)(1)(A) (Count 22). Counts 21 and 22 were based on the government's 9 allegation that Dorsey shot into Fullard's apartment to prevent her grand jury 10 testimony.

11 Dorsey pleaded guilty to Counts 1 through 20, accepting his criminal liability for 12 the charges of conspiracy, vehicle-trafficking, and operating a chop shop. But 13 while agreeing to these serious offenses, Dorsey maintained his innocence on the 14 counts relating to the shooting of planned grand jury witness Fullard. The case
15 proceeded to trial on Counts 21 and 22.

16 Before trial, the government moved in limine to admit testimony from William 17 Fomby, a co-conspirator who had pleaded guilty, that before the shooting he had 18 seen Dorsey with a Glock firearm. After the pretrial motions hearing but before 19 opening statements at trial, Mouy Harper, an ex-girlfriend of Dorsey's, told the 20 prosecution that she, too, had seen Dorsey with a gun before the shooting. The 21 district court ruled that Fomby's testimony and Harper's testimony were 22 admissible. The district court also ruled that the government's exhibit of a three-23 gun montage, from which Harper had identified a Glock as the gun that she had 24 seen Dorsey possessing, was admissible.

25 Dorsey at trial stressed the lack of direct evidence against him. There were no
26 eyewitnesses, no gun, no fingerprints, and no DNA linking him to the shooting.
27 Dorsey contended that of several possible theories for the shooting, the police 28 pursued only the theory that he was the shooter. But the government presented circumstantial evidence showing that Dorsey had definite knowledge of Fullard's receipt of a grand jury subpoena and a strong motive to prevent her grand jury testimony. The government also presented Dorsey's cell phone records and cellular tower data to show Dorsey's attempts to call the police to establish that he was someplace he was not at the time of the shooting. Technology was fatal to Dorsey's alibi because he used a cell phone that showed his proximity to the scene of the shooting, not to where he said he was when he called. That Dorsey tried to create a fake alibi was not merely ineffective, but also stands high in the hierarchy of evidence tending to show guilt.

In addition, Fomby testified that before the shooting he saw Dorsey retrieve a black, bulky gun that he thought was a Glock from the trunk of Harper's car. Harper testified that she recalled Dorsey taking something from the trunk of her car, that she once saw Dorsey with a charcoal gray gun, and that she had identified the first gun in the three-gun montage shown to her by the police—a Glock .40 caliber with a black polymer frame—as a gun that looked like the gun she saw. A firearm and toolmark examiner testified that the combined characteristics of the cartridge cases and bullets recovered from Fullard's apartment were consistent with a Glock or similar type of firearm.

During cross-examination Detective Paul Suguro remarked that Dorsey "did it." The district court at once told the jury to disregard the comment and admonished Suguro in front of the jury. Dorsey moved for a mistrial. The district court denied the motion because it concluded that Dorsey was not prejudiced by Suguro's comment.

After an eight-day trial, the jury found Dorsey guilty on both counts. Dorsey moved for a new trial based on the admission of the testimony of Fomby and Harper that Dorsey possessed a gun before the shooting, and on Detective Suguro's comment that Dorsey "did it."^[1] The district court denied the motion. The district court sentenced Dorsey to forty-eight years in prison: five years on Count 1, thirteen years each on Counts 2 and 3, ten years each on Counts 4 through 20, and thirty years on Count 21, all to run concurrent; and eighteen years on Count 22, to run consecutive to Counts 1 through 21.

B. Petitioner's Direct Appeal

Petitioner filed a timely direct appeal, and the Ninth Circuit affirmed his conviction. Dorsey, 677 F.3d 944. Petitioner made the following arguments: (1) it was error to admit William Fomby and Mouy Harper's testimony regarding petitioner's possession of a "Glock type" handgun; (2) the government improperly vouched for William Fomby's credibility when it elicited testimony on the truthfulness provisions of Mr. Fomby's plea agreement; (3) the government improperly vouched for Detective Suguro's comment that petitioner "did it"; and (4) it was error to hold that the maximum statutory sentence was life imprisonment. Id. The Ninth Circuit held that it was not error to admit Mr. Fomby and Ms. Harper's testimony, that defense counsel opened the door for the prosecutor to elicit testimony on the truthfulness

1 provisions of Mr. Fomby's plea agreement, that Detective Suguro's comment was harmless
 2 error, and that the maximum sentence was indeed life imprisonment. Id.

3 C. Petitioner's Second New Trial Motion

4 On May 31, 2013, petitioner filed another motion for a new trial and he requested an 5 evidentiary hearing. CR Dkt. # 520. Petitioner had argued that newly discovered evidence 6 demonstrated that the government knowingly used false testimony at his trial and that the 7 government violated its obligations under Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963). CR Dkt.
 8 # 520 at 27–28. With respect to petitioner's first argument, petitioner's evidence included:
 9 interview statements by Ms. Harper and Shawn Turner recanting their trial testimony and 10 claiming that their prior statements were coerced by investigating officers; phone records for a 11 phone number that petitioner claimed to be using at the time of the shooting; and Tammy 12 Jackson's affidavits. Id. at 5–8, 10–22. The Court concluded that neither Ms. Harper nor Mr.
 13 Turner's recantations were credible, their trial testimony was consistent with the testimony of 14 several other trial witnesses, and the government presented sufficient independent evidence of 15 petitioner's guilt (e.g., cell phone record evidence demonstrating that petitioner was in close 16 proximity to Ms. Fullard's home on the night she was shot). CR Dkt. # 583 at 8–12. The Court 17 also determined that the phone records petitioner offered in support of his motion were not 18 newly discovered, and even if they were, the Court did not interpret them as proving that the 19 government knowingly used false testimony, and petitioner failed to establish a reasonable 20 probability that the outcome of the trial would have been different without the testimony in 21 question. Id. at 12–14. Ms. Jackson's affidavits were similarly unavailing. The Court concluded 22 that the affidavits were not newly discovered, and even if they were, petitioner failed to establish 23 that he could not have discovered the testimony sooner, particularly where he claimed he knew 24 that one of the phone numbers at issue in the trial was not his. Id. at 14–16. Moreover, even if 25 petitioner had been diligent in pursuing this evidence, the Court nevertheless found that Ms.
 26 Jackson's testimony probably would not have changed the outcome of the trial. Id. at 16.

27 As for the second argument, regarding the government's Brady obligations, petitioner
 28 contended that the government failed to disclose the identity of Malika Wells. CR Dkt. # 520 at
 ORDER ON PETITIONER'S 28 U.S.C. § 2255 PETITION
 AND RELATED MOTIONS - 7

1 8–10. Petitioner submitted an investigation log report prepared by the Washington State Patrol,
 2 which demonstrated that the prosecution knew of Ms. Wells’ identity as of June 2, 2010, but 3 because petitioner failed to explain when the prosecution disclosed the log to his counsel, the 4 Court was unconvinced that the prosecution failed to disclose this evidence. CR Dkt. # 583 at 5 17–18. The Court also concluded that there was not a reasonable probability that had this 6 evidence been disclosed, that the result would have been any different. Id. at 18.

7 The Court denied the motion, and the Ninth Circuit affirmed. United States v. Dorsey,
 8 781 F. App’x 590 (9th Cir. 2019). Petitioner argued that the Court should have excluded cell
 9 tower data because the government obtained the data with a court order, and the Supreme Court
 10 had since decided that such searches violate the Fourth Amendment. Id. at 591. The Ninth 11 Circuit held that the good faith exception applied to the Fourth Amendment because the 12 government reasonably relied upon the Stored Communications Act when it obtained the cell
 13 tower data. Id. at 592. Petitioner had also argued on appeal that the Court abused its discretion in 14 denying his motion for an evidentiary hearing. Id. The Ninth Circuit held that the Court did not 15 abuse its discretion and accepted the Court’s reasoning that even absent the testimony of the 16 recanting witnesses, it was not probable that the jury would have reached a different verdict. Id.

17 D. Motion under 28 U.S.C. § 2255 and Subsequent Procedural History

18 On June 24, 2019, petitioner, through counsel, filed a motion pursuant to 28 U.S.C.
 19 § 2255. The petition raises three grounds for relief. Dkt. # 1. Numerous motions to amend were 20 filed after that by petitioner’s various counsel (Dkts. # 4, # 18, # 36, # 68) or by petitioner pro se
 21 (Dkts. # 9, # 11, # 22, # 23, # 24, # 27, # 39, # 50, # 51, # 56). Petitioner also filed a pro se 22 motion for discovery (Dkt. # 28) and a pro se motion to withdraw an argument regarding his 23 plea agreement (Dkt. # 52). Following the government’s filing of its Omnibus Response (Dkt.
 24 # 55), petitioner filed a pro se motion for extension of time to file a reply to this response (Dkt.
 25 # 59), and petitioner’s counsel eventually filed a belated Reply to the Government’s Omnibus

26

27

28

1 Response (Dkt. # 67).¹ Subsequently, petitioner's counsel filed another motion to amend (Dkt.
 2 # 68), and the government filed a motion for leave to file a late response to this most recent 3 motion to amend (Dkt. # 70). Rather than recite a detailed timeline of these numerous filings,
 4 the sequence of filings is conveyed in the table the Court supplied above.

5 III. PETITIONER'S MOTIONS FILED PRO SE WHILE REPRESENTED BY 6 COUNSEL (DKTS. # 9, # 11, # 22, # 23, # 24, # 39, # 50, # 51, # 52, # 56, # 59)

7 Almost all of petitioner's pro se pleadings were made while he was represented by 8 counsel.² The Court previously made petitioner aware that such hybrid representation is not 9 permitted and referred petitioner to the relevant Local Civil Rule ("LCR"), which states as 10 follows:

11 [w]hen a party is represented by an attorney of record in a case, the party cannot 12 appear or act on his . . . own behalf in that case, or take any step therein, until after 13 the party requests by motion to proceed on his . . . own behalf, certifies in the 14 motion that he . . . has provided copies of the motion to his . . . current counsel and 15 to the opposing party, and is granted an order of substitution by the court terminating the party's attorney as counsel and substituting the party in to proceed pro se.

16 Dkt. # 12 at 2 (Order citing LCR 83.2(b)(4), which is now found at LCR 83.2(b)(5)). Although 17 the Court did not strike petitioner's pro se pleadings filed up to that point (Dkts. # 9, # 11), the 18 Court specifically instructed petitioner to "henceforth, act in accordance with all Local Civil 19 Rules, including Rule 83.2(b)(4)." Dkt. # 12 at 3. Because petitioner has continued to 20 contravene Local Civil Rules,³ despite the Court's specific instruction on October 31, 2014, the

22 ¹ Petitioner's counsel did not seek leave to file a belated Reply to the Government's Omnibus 23 Response (Dkt. # 67), which was due July 27, 2020. Dkt. # 54; LCR 100 (mandating that "the time for 24 filing answers and replies, if any, shall be as directed by order of the Court"). Nevertheless, the Court
 25 considers petitioner's Reply despite its tardiness in light of both petitioner's pro se attempt to seek an 26 extension of time while represented by his former counsel, Dkt. # 59, as well as the intervening change
 27 of counsel, see Dkts. # 60–66 (motions, notice, orders, etc., regarding petitioner seeking new counsel 28 and the Court permitting the withdrawal of petitioner's former counsel).

² Dkts. # 27–28 are the only pro se filings made while petitioner was unrepresented.

³ All but one of the motions (Dkt. # 39) fail to certify that copies of the respective motions have been provided to petitioner's current counsel, and petitioner's filings do not appear to request that the
 ORDER ON PETITIONER'S 28 U.S.C. § 2255 PETITION
 AND RELATED MOTIONS - 9

1 Court strikes petitioner's pro se motions filed after October 31, 2014, when petitioner was 2 represented by counsel at the time of filing. Therefore, the Court strikes the following motions
 3 from the docket: Dkts. # 23, # 24, # 39, # 50, # 51, # 52, # 56, # 59. Because the Court
 4 previously permitted Dkt. # 9 and Dkt. # 11 to remain on the docket, see Dkt. # 12 at 2–3, and 5 because Dkt. # 22 represents petitioner's curing of the signature defect present in Dkt. # 11,⁴
 6 these three motions (Dkts. # 9, # 11, # 22) are analyzed further below. See infra Part V.

7 IV. REQUEST TO STAY (DKT. # 70)

8 On June 25, 2020, the government's Omnibus Response suggested that the Court
 9 "shoulder consider staying this matter pending a resolution of [United States v. Begay⁵] and 10 [United States v. Orona, Case No. 17-17508 and United States v. Borden, No. 19-5410]," but 11 only if the Court found petitioner's Begay-related claim timely and potentially meritorious. Dkt.
 12 # 55 at 31. On July 22, 2020, petitioner, through his former counsel, Ms. Elliott, moved to stay 13 the proceedings pending the resolution of the government's rehearing petition in Begay. Dkt.
 14 # 57. Recently, petitioner moved to withdraw this motion to stay, Dkt. # 72, which the Court
 15 granted, Dkt. # 73.

16 Although petitioner has now changed his position regarding staying the case, the 17 government maintains in its most recent filing that if the Court does not deny petitioner's
 18 motions for habeas relief, then the Court should stay the case until resolution of Begay.⁶ Dkt.

21 Court terminate counsel and permit petitioner to proceed on his own behalf, but rather, they suggest that 22 petitioner seeks merely to add his own pro se filings into the mix while retaining the benefit of legal representation.

23 ⁴ The Court previously ordered petitioner to cure Dkt. # 11's signature defect. Dkt. # 12 at 3–4.

24 ⁵ On October 27, 2021, the Ninth Circuit ordered that Begay be reheard en banc, and it vacated 25 the three-judge panel opinion. United States v. Begay, 15 F. 4th 1254 (9th Cir. Oct. 27, 2021) (mem.).

26 ⁶ The Assistant United States Attorney ("AUSA") who had filed the government's Omnibus
 27 Response to petitioner's motions retired in June 2021, and petitioner's July 2021 motion to amend did 28 not come to the attention of the government's new counsel until petitioner's counsel emailed it in mid-
 August to the AUSAs who tried petitioner. Dkt. # 70 at 1–2 n.2. Given the circumstances, the Court GRANTS the government's motion for leave to file a late response (Dkt. # 70).

1 # 70 at 3. Because the Court is persuaded by the government's arguments to deny the petition,
 2 see infra Part V.D, the alternative relief of a stay is DENIED as moot.

3 V. MOTIONS TO AMEND (DKTS. # 4, # 9, # 11, # 18, # 22, # 27, # 36, # 68) AND 4 MERITS OF PETITION (DKT. # 1)

5 Petitioner has a variety of claims sprinkled throughout his numerous motions. One of 6 those claims concerns petitioner's "crime of violence" theory ("COV claim"). Below, the Court
 7 first addresses the government's arguments regarding petitioner's non-COV claims and then 8 addresses the COV claim.

9 A. Timeliness of the Non-COV Claims

10 A one-year statute of limitations applies to all § 2255 petitions. 28 U.S.C. § 2255(f). This 11 one-year period runs from one of four different benchmarks. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 2255(f)(1)–(4).⁷
 12 As relevant for the non-COV claims, this one-year time-period commences when the conviction
 13 becomes final. See 28 U.S.C. § 2255(f)(1). Because petitioner sought a writ of certiorari 14 following the Ninth Circuit's affirmation of his conviction and sentence, his conviction became 15 final when that certiorari petition was denied on June 24, 2013. Dorsey, 677 F.3d 944, cert.
 16 denied, 570 U.S. 919 (June 24, 2013); see Clay v. United States, 537 U.S. 522, 527 (2003)
 17 ("Finality attaches when this Court affirms a conviction on the merits on direct review or denies 18 a petition for a writ of certiorari, or when the time for filing a certiorari petition expires.").
 19 Petitioner filed his original § 2255 petition via counsel on June 24, 2014. The government does 20 not dispute the timeliness of the initial filing (claims 1–3), Dkt. # 55 at 10, and the Court
 21 concludes that claims 1–3 are timely. With respect to the claims raised in the various motions to 22 amend after the original petition (hereinafter, "supplemental claims"), these claims must either 23 satisfy the "relation back" standard set out in Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(c), see Mayle v. Felix, 545 U.S.
 24 644 (2005), or have some independent basis in § 2255(f) to establish timeliness. While leave to
 26
 27

28 ⁷ The Court discusses the third benchmark in its analysis of the COV claim's timeliness. See infra Part V.D, n.25.

1 amend is generally freely granted, it may be denied if the proposed amendment would be 2 futile. Bonin v. Calderon, 59 F.3d 815, 845 (9th Cir. 1995).

3 The government argues that the vast majority of the supplemental claims fail to relate
 4 back to the original petition and that therefore the motions to amend should be denied. Petitioner
 5 disputes this point and contends that the supplemental claims relate back by asserting “a claim
 6 or defense that arose out of the conduct, transaction, or occurrence set out—or attempted to be 7 set out—in the original pleading.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(c)(1)(B). The Supreme Court has stated
 8 that “[s]o long as the original and amended [habeas] petitions state claims that are tied to a 9 common core of operative facts, relation back will be in order” per Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(c)(1)(B).
 10 Mayle, 545 U.S. at 664. An amended petition does not relate back where it “asserts a new 11 ground for relief supported by facts that differ in both time and type from those the original 12 pleading set forth.” Id. at 650.

13 To determine whether the supplemental claims relate back to the original filing, the Court 14 must examine the facts supporting the claims in the original petition and the facts supporting the 15 claims contained in the subsequent motions to amend. The original petition puts forward three 16 claims: (1) that petitioner’s due process rights were violated because Detective Donovan Daly
 17 coerced Ms. Harper to testify falsely against him; (2) that petitioner’s due process rights were 18 violated because Detective Daly coerced Mr. Turner to testify falsely against him; and (3) that 19 trial counsel was ineffective for failing to contact and seek testimony from Michelle McNair,
 20 an alibi witness who could account for petitioner’s location at the time of the shooting.⁸

⁸ Petitioner and the government number the claims differently. Petitioner’s “Ground One” is synonymous with claim 1, petitioner’s “Ground Two” is synonymous with claim 3, and petitioner’s “Ground Three” is synonymous with claim 2. See Dkts. # 55 at 34–36, # 67 at 3–4. The Court adopts the government’s numbering system because it finds the government’s approach more comprehensive and easier to follow than petitioner’s approach. Petitioner’s Reply uses the following labels, Grounds 1–4, Pro Se Grounds 1–6, and Grounds 6–11, but these labels do not accurately distinguish between which grounds are pro se and which are not. See, e.g., Dkt. # 67 at 8 (discussing “Ground Six,” which appears to align with petitioner’s pro se ground/claim “(B): Ineffective assistance of counsel for failing to obtain Mr. Dorsey’s Motorcycle invoice from the service department at downtown Harley Davidson.” Dkt. # 9-1 at 2).

1 Notably, petitioner does not argue that his amended claims relate back to the due process claims
 2 he maintains in claims 1–2. Rather, petitioner’s relation-back argument relies upon claim 3.

3 Claim 3 focuses on facts regarding trial counsel’s failure to contact Ms. McNeair to 4 testify as an alibi witness as to petitioner’s location around the time of the shooting. Specifically,
 5 the claim concerns allegations that Ms. McNeair met petitioner at a Burger King to purchase a 6 Ford Explorer on May 13, 2008, between 10:00 a.m. and 10:30 p.m. for about fifteen minutes,
 7 that petitioner’s attorney failed to adequately investigate and consider Ms. McNeair as an alibi
 8 witness, including her ability to “cast doubt” as to whether petitioner was in the area of Ms.
 9 Fullard’s residence at the time of the shooting. Dkt. # 1 at 10–11.

10 Petitioner contends that the arguments in his motions to amend “stem from Petitioner’s 11 core allegations of ineffective assistance of counsel based on counsel’s failure to investigate and 12 thus, ‘relate back’ to the original filing.” Dkt. # 67 at 13. In other words, petitioner traces the 13 supplemental claims back to the ineffective assistance of counsel (“IAC”) argument in claim 3.
 14 The Ninth Circuit has recognized, however, that claims do not arise out of the same core of 15 operative facts merely because they each involve an IAC claim. See Schneider v. McDaniel, 674
 16 F.3d 1144, 1151 (9th Cir. 2012) (rejecting the petitioner’s argument “that the assertion of any 17 claim of ineffective assistance of appellate counsel based upon the failure to raise an issue or 18 issues on direct appeal thereafter supports the relation back of any and every claim of ineffective 19 assistance of appellate counsel that petitioner thereafter may decide to raise”). Upon reviewing 20 the facts underlying petitioner’s numerous supplemental claims, the Court finds that the vast 21 majority of claims fail to relate back to claim 3.

22 1. Dkt. # 4 (Claims 4–7⁹)

23 None of the supplemental claims put forward in Dkt. # 4 share core facts with claim 3:

24 • Claim 4: IAC for failing to call Ms. Jackson to testify that she, not petitioner, 25 made calls to Mr. Fomby from a “7743” phone number the night of the shooting.
 26 Dkt. # 4 at 2. At trial, the prosecution suggested that Mr. Fomby had received 27 numerous calls the night Ms. Fullard was shot and that petitioner used a “7743”

28 ⁹ Claims 4–6 appear to correspond with petitioner’s “Ground Four.” Dkt. # 67 at 4–5.

1 phone number to call Mr. Fomby. Id. at 3. Ms. Jackson's affidavit states, however,
 2 that she was the one who called Mr. Fomby. Id. at 2; CR Dkt. # 528 at 16.

- 3 • Claim 5: IAC for failing to investigate the phone records for the “7743” phone
 4 number. Dkt. # 4 at 3. Petitioner argues that the “7743” phone records reveal that 5 Mr. Fomby was lying about the calls he allegedly received from him because the 6 number would have been blocked such that Mr. Fomby would have been unable to 7 identify the phone number. Id.
- 8 • Claim 6: IAC for failing to obtain Diamond Williams-Gradney’s phone records.
 9 “At trial, Ms. Williams-Gradney testified that sometime in March of 2008[,] Mr.
 10 Dorsey had called her and accused her of receiving a grand jury subpoena and not 11 revealing that information to him.” Dkt. # 4 at 4. According to petitioner, however, 12 Ms. Williams-Gradney’s phone records reflect that petitioner never called her, 13 though she did call him in March of 2008. Id.
- 14 • Claim 7: Fourth Amendment claim that petitioner’s privacy rights were violated
 15 when the government obtained cell site location data for his cell phone provider
 16 without a warrant or his consent.¹⁰ Dkt. # 4 at 4–7.¹¹

14 2. Dkt. # 9-1 (Claims 8–14)¹²

15 None of the supplemental claims listed in Dkt. # 9-1 share core facts with claim 3:

- 16 • Claim 8: IAC for failing to obtain Detective Mooney’s phone records.

20 ¹⁰ Notably, petitioner’s Reply neglects to characterize claim 7 as one of the grounds for habeas 21 relief. See Dkt. # 67.

22 ¹¹ The government’s index lists two Fourth Amendment claims: 7 and 30. At one point, 23 petitioner characterized this Fourth Amendment argument as “Ground Five.” Dkts. # 4 at 4, # 27 at 1.
 24 Because claim 30 merely reiterates claim 7’s Fourth Amendment argument with new authority, for the 25 same reason that claim 7 does not relate back (i.e., core facts are not shared with the claims in the 26 original petition), neither does claim 30. Even if this Fourth Amendment argument had been raised in a 27 timely manner, it would still fail because petitioner raised this claim in the appeal from the denial of his 28 new trial motion, and the Ninth Circuit rejected it. Dorsey, 781 F. App’x at 592.

29 ¹² Dkt. # 9-1 refers to these as claims (A)–(H) respectively, though claim (D) was not included in 30 the government’s table and does not appear below. This claim concerns the ineffective assistance of 31 appeal counsel for failing to raise the issue regarding vouching for Detective Mooney’s credibility 32 during closing. It shares no core facts with the claims in the original petition.

- 1 • Claim 9: IAC for failing to obtain an invoice regarding petitioner's motorcycle
2 from the Downtown Harley Davidson Service Department to impeach the 3 testimonies of Detective Mooney and Mr. Fomby.¹³
- 4 • Claim 10: IAC for failing to object to prosecutor's vouching for Detective
5 Mooney's credibility during closing.
- 6 • Claim 11: IAC for failing to call Arthur Wilcher as a witness.
- 7 • Claim 12: IAC for failing to call Tiffany Walton as a witness.¹⁴
- 8 • Claim 13: IAC for failing to call Officer Steve Kaffer as a witness.¹⁵
- 9 • Claim 14: IAC for failing to seek a trial continuance to develop Ms. Wells as a 10 witness.

11 3. Dkts. # 11 and # 22 (Claims 15–24)

12 Only one of the government-numbered supplemental claims petitioner included in Dkts.
13 # 11, # 22 arguably shares core facts with claim 3, claim 15:

- 14 • Claim 15: The government characterizes claim 15 as follows: "There was no
15 witness who placed Dorsey at the scene of the shooting and the evidence should 16 have been developed to show he was selling a Ford Explorer to Michelle McNear 17 at the time." Dkt. # 55 at 35 (citing Dkts. # 11 at 7, # 22 at 7). In reviewing 18 petitioner's motion to amend containing this claim, the Court finds that petitioner
19 more specifically argues that there was a "lack of evidence" and "want of proof"
20 for conviction,¹⁶ and petitioner also mentions that he was selling a car to Ms.

21 ¹³ Petitioner's Reply referred to this claim under the heading "Ground Six." Dkt. # 67 at 8–9.
22 Although petitioner cited Dkt. # 24 as the source for this claim, and the Court is striking Dkt. # 24, this
23 claim is also found in Dkt. # 9-1.

24 ¹⁴ Petitioner's Reply referred to this claim under the heading "Ground Ten." Dkt. # 67 at 10.
25 Although petitioner cited Dkt. # 24 as the source for this claim, and the Court is striking Dkt. # 24, this
26 claim is also found in Dkt. # 9-1.

27 ¹⁵ As stated in the immediately preceding footnote, petitioner's Reply referred to this claim under 28 the heading "Ground Ten." Dkt. # 67 at 10. Although petitioner cited Dkt. # 24 as the source for this 29 claim, and the Court is striking Dkt. # 24, this claim is also found in Dkt. # 9-1.

30 ¹⁶ Petitioner's reference to Ms. McNear is somewhat confusingly contained in a larger section
31 that petitioner characterizes as "Pro Se Ground One," Dkts. # 67 at 6, # 11 at 7, which petitioner frames
32 as an argument regarding the sufficiency of the evidence, Dkt. # 67 at 6 ("Here, Petitioner essentially 33 argues that there was insufficient evidence to convict him . . ."). Assuming, arguendo, that this type of

1 McNair during the period of time Ms. Fullard was assaulted. Dkt. # 22 at 6–7.
 2 Although the allegation regarding Ms. McNair shares facts with claim 3, see Dkt.
 3 # 1 at 10–11, it does not articulate a clear legal claim regarding Ms. McNair’s 4 potential testimony separate and apart from claim 3 and does not need to be 5 separately analyzed. See infra Part V.B.2 (addressing the merits of claim 3).

- 6 • Claims 16–17: IAC for failing to seek a continuance based on the late discovery regarding telephone records for the 7743 phone number, or in the alternative, excluding all evidence related to calls from the 7743 phone number. Dkt. # 22 at 7 9–13.¹⁷
- 8 • Claim 18: IAC for failing to seek a continuance to investigate Mr. Turner’s statements and to develop Ms. Wells as a witness. Dkt. # 22 at 18–19.
- 9 • Claim 19: The government withheld Brady material that would have established 10 that Detective Mooney’s testimony was false. Dkt. # 22 at 20–21.
- 11 • Claim 20: The government improperly vouched for its witnesses. Dkt. # 22 at 33– 12 34.¹⁸
- 13 • Claim 21: IAC for failing to obtain Ms. Williams-Gradney’s phone records to 14 establish that she was not truthful. Dkt. # 22 at 40–42.¹⁹
- 15 • Claims 22: IAC for failing to obtain testimony from Paul Dervin and Nonis
 16 Clayton regarding petitioner’s location at the time of the shooting. Dkt. # 11 at 51.

 19 sufficiency of the evidence claim is timely and not procedurally barred, it fails on the merits. There is 20 sufficient evidence to support a conviction if, “after viewing the evidence in the light most favorable to 21 the prosecution, any rational trier of fact could have found the essential elements of the crime beyond a 22 reasonable doubt.” Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 319 (1979). That standard is easily met here. See 23 Dorsey, 781 F. App’x at 592 (holding that the Court did not err in determining that “even absent the 24 testimony of the recanting witnesses, it was not probable that the jury would have reached a different verdict,” given the cell tower data evidence). “Pro Se Ground Five,” regarding petitioner’s argument that there is not any evidence to support his conviction, Dkt. # 67 at 7, fails for the same reason.

25 ¹⁷ Claims 16–17 appear to overlap in part with what petitioner refers to as “Pro Se Ground Two.”
 26 Dkt. # 67 at 6.

27 ¹⁸ Claim 20 appears to overlap in part with what petitioner calls “Pro Se Ground Four.” Dkt. # 67
 28 at 7.

19 Claim 21 appears to overlap with what petitioner calls “Pro Se Ground Six.” Dkt. # 67 at 7.

- 1 • Claim 23: IAC for failing to introduce evidence regarding the lawsuit that
- 2 petitioner had filed against “Detective Saucman.”²⁰ Dkt. # 11 at 52.
- 3 • Claim 24: IAC for failing to call Officer Kaffer to testify regarding Mr. Wilcher’s
- 4 demeanor following the shooting. Dkt. # 11 at 52–53.

5 It appears that in addition to claims 15–24 listed above, numbered by the government, petitioner
 6 also presents a due process claim based on various prosecutorial misconduct, Dkts. # 22 at 24–
 7 33 (listing allegations), # 67 at 7 (“Pro Se Ground Three”). One of the ways in which petitioner
 8 contends prosecutors engaged in misconduct was in presenting false testimony of Ms. Harper 9 and Mr. Turner. Dkt. # 22 at 29. To the extent that this unnumbered pro se claim relates back to 10 claims 1–2, the Court addresses the merits of this claim below. See infra Part V.B.1. The 11 remainder of the claims fail to relate back.

12 4. Equitable Tolling

13 Petitioner argues in the alternative that if the Court finds that petitioner’s amendments do 14 not relate back, that the Court should apply the doctrine of equitable tolling. Dkt. # 67 at 15–16.
 15 The period of limitations may be equitably tolled when the petitioner shows: “(1) that he has 16 been pursuing his rights diligently, and (2) that some extraordinary circumstance stood in his 17 way [of timely filing].” Pace v. DiGuglielmo, 544 U.S. 408, 418 (2005). Petitioner briefly 18 discusses his diligence, but petitioner does not refer to any extraordinary circumstances for the 19 Court to consider. Dkt. # 67 at 15–16. The Court concludes that petitioner has failed to bear the 20 burden of establishing the elements required for equitable tolling, and the Court declines to find 21 the amendments timely.

22

24

25

26

27

²⁰ Claim 23 appears to overlap with what petitioner calls “Ground Eight.” Dkt. # 67 at 9–10. Although petitioner cited Dkt. # 24 as the source for this claim, and the Court is striking Dkt. # 24, this claim is also found in Dkt. # 11.

1 B. Merits of the Timely Non-COV Claims

2 Petitioner's original petition did not support claims 1–3 with declarations or documents.
 3 See Dkt. # 1. Even if the Court entertains these claims based on subsequent filings or the filings 4 associated with petitioner's second new trial motion,²¹ his claims still fail.

5 1. Claims 1–2 and Unnumbered Pro Se Claims Regarding Alleged False
 6 Testimony by Ms. Harper and Mr. Turner

7 For claims 1–2, petitioner is only entitled to relief if he can establish that the testimony in 8 question was coerced, Williams v. Calderon, 48 F. Supp. 2d 979, 1001, (C.D. Cal. 1998), and 9 that the testimony rendered his trial so unfair as to violate due process, Williams v. Woodford, 10 384 F.3d 567, 593 (9th Cir. 2004). As for the unnumbered claims regarding alleged 11 prosecutorial misconduct in presenting false testimony by Ms. Harper and Mr. Turner, Dkt. # 22
 12 at 29, petitioner is only entitled to relief if he can prove that (1) the testimony was actually false;
 13 (2) the prosecution knew or should have known that the testimony was false; and (3) the 14 testimony was material. Jackson v. Brown, 513 F.3d 1057, 1071–72 (9th Cir. 2008).

15 In the Court's order denying petitioner's motion for a new trial, the Court found that Ms.
 16 Harper's recantation was not credible, and that petitioner failed to establish that Ms. Harper's 17 trial testimony was false. The Court observed Ms. Harper's in-court testimony and did not find 18 her sworn affidavit more credible than the sworn testimony she provided at trial. CR Dkt. # 583
 19 at 9. Because petitioner has not established that Ms. Harper's testimony was coerced or false, 20 claim 1, and the unnumbered prosecutorial misconduct claim related to Ms. Harper's testimony,
 21 necessarily fail.²²

22 ²¹ The government argues that petitioner should not be permitted to re-litigate claims 1–2 here
 23 because they are merely recycled versions of arguments that petitioner lost in his second new trial
 24 motion. See Dkt. # 55 at 14–15 (citing United States v. Jingles, 702 F.3d 494 (9th Cir. 2012)). “Under 25 the ‘law of the case’ doctrine, a court is ordinarily precluded from reexamining an issue previously 26 decided by the same court, or a higher court, in the same case.” Jingles, 702 F.3d at 499 (citing 27 Richardson v. United States, 841 F.2d 993, 996 (9th Cir. 1988)). Even assuming, arguendo, that the 28 Court is not precluded from examining claims 1–2, petitioner will not prevail.

22 ²² Additionally, the Court reflected that Ms. Harper's trial testimony regarding seeing petitioner 23 with a gun was consistent with the testimony of several other witnesses, including Mr. Fomby and
 24 ORDER ON PETITIONER'S 28 U.S.C. § 2255 PETITION
 25 AND RELATED MOTIONS - 18

1 Similarly, the Court's order denying petitioner's motion for a new trial also addressed
 2 Mr. Turner's recantation. The Court found that Mr. Turner's recantation was not credible. CR
 3 Dkt. # 583 at 12. Because petitioner has failed to demonstrate that Mr. Turner's testimony was 4 coerced or false, claim 2, and the unnumbered prosecutorial misconduct claim related to Mr.
 5 Turner's testimony, must fail.²³

6 2. Claim 3 Regarding Ms. McNeair's Potential Alibi Testimony

7 Petitioner is only entitled to relief under claim 3 for IAC if he can show (1) inadequate
 8 performance by counsel, and (2) prejudice resulting from that inadequate performance.
 9 Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 687 (1984). To satisfy part one of the Strickland test, 10 petitioner must demonstrate that "in light of all the circumstances, the identified acts or 11 omissions were outside the wide range of professionally competent assistance." Id. at 690. And 12 petitioner must overcome a presumption that "the challenged action might be considered sound 13 trial strategy." May v. Shinn, 954 F.3d 1194, 1203 (9th Cir. 2020) (quoting Strickland, 466 U.S.
 14 at 689). With respect to part two of the Strickland test, petitioner "must show that there is a 15 reasonable probability that, but for counsel's unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding 16 would have been different." Strickland, 466 U.S. at 694.

17 Even assuming, arguendo, that petitioner could satisfy part one of the Strickland test,
 18 petitioner cannot demonstrate part two. Petitioner has not demonstrated that there is a reasonable 19 probability that the result of the proceeding would have been different if counsel had called Ms.
 20 Ms. McNeair to testify as an alibi witness as to petitioner's location around the time of the shooting.
 21 Ms. McNeair's affidavit is not definitive as to the time of her alleged meeting with petitioner.
 22 Ms. McNeair claims that she arrived at "around" 10:00 p.m. at a Burger King restaurant in 23

24 Detective Tyson Sagiao. CR Dkt. # 583 at 10. This lends further support for the conclusion that claim 1 25 fails where the testimony did not render the trial so unfair as to violate due process.

26 ²³ The Court also reasoned that Mr. Turner's testimony, which was used to demonstrate that 27 petitioner was aware of Ms. Fullard's grand jury subpoena, was corroborated by the trial testimony of 28 several other witnesses, including Ms. Gradney-Williams, Mr. Fomby, Detective Mooney, and Kizzy Wright. CR Dkt. # 583 at 12. Given the independent evidence presented against him at trial, the testimony did not render the trial so unfair as to violate due process. Claim 2 fails on the merits.

1 Seattle, that petitioner “showed up about 10 or 15 minutes later,” that the “transaction took
 2 about 10 or 15 minutes,” and then he drove off “towards the West Seattle Bridge.” Dkt. # 14-1
 3 at 89–90. The approximate timing and the location of the Burger King, 3301 4th Ave South,
 4 Seattle, do not preclude the possibility that petitioner was the shooter. If for example, Ms.
 5 McNair arrived at 9:55 p.m., petitioner showed up at 10:05 p.m., and petitioner left at 10:15
 6 p.m., petitioner still could have arrived at Ms. Fullard’s home (5625 Delridge Way SW, Seattle,
 7 Dkt. # 459 at 678) by 10:29 p.m. to commit the shooting. See Googlemaps, <https://maps.google.com>
 8 (last visited Nov. 12, 2021) (mapping the Burger King address to Ms. Fullard’s home
 9 address and reflecting a drive of “typically 14–18 min” on a Tuesday at 10:15 p.m. when not 10 using the West Seattle Bridge).²⁴ If, however, Ms. McNair arrived at 10:05 p.m., petitioner 11 showed up at 10:20 p.m., and petitioner left at 10:35 p.m., that would align better with 12 petitioner’s alleged alibi. The problem for petitioner is that this alleged alibi remains 13 inconsistent with the cell phone tower evidence used to establish that petitioner’s cell phone
 14 calls between 9:16 p.m. and the time of the shooting were transmitted off of a cellular tower
 15 almost directly behind Ms. Fullard’s apartment. And as the Ninth Circuit recognized, the 16 strongest evidence against petitioner was these cell tower records. Dorsey, 677 F.3d at 950; see also Dorsey, 781 F. App’x at 492 (holding that the Court did not err in determining that even 18 absent the testimony of the recanting witnesses, it was not probable that the jury would have 19 reached a different verdict, given the cell tower data evidence). Therefore, the Court concludes 20

21 ²⁴ As far as the Court is aware, the West Seattle Bridge was operational at the time of the 22 shooting. See Dkt. # 14-1 at 90 (referring to petitioner driving “towards the West Seattle Bridge”).
 23 Given that this bridge is currently closed, see West Seattle Bridge Closure, King County Metro (June 9,
 24 2021) <https://kingcounty.gov/depts/transportation/metro/programs-projects/transit-corridors-parking-and-facilities/west-seattle-bridge-closure.aspx> (last visited Nov. 12, 2021) (reflecting that the West
 25 Seattle Bridge is currently closed), the drive time would likely be even shorter than the 14–18 minute
 26 route currently recommended by Google Maps because when the bridge is operational, the travel
 27 distance is far less. Mapquest, which appears to permit a user to calculate drive times using the West
 28 Seattle Bridge, reflects that it would take approximately seven minutes to use this bridge to get from the Burger King to Ms. Fullard’s residence. See Mapquest, <https://www.mapquest.com/directions/from/us/wa/seattle/98134-1902/3301-4th-ave-s-47.574049,-122.329172/to/us/wa/seattle/98106-1445/5625-delridge-way-sw-47.551132,-122.363009> (last visited Nov. 12, 2021).

1 that petitioner has not satisfied part two of the Strickland test and is not entitled to relief under 2 claim 3.

3 C. Summary of Motions to Amend Regarding the Non-COV claims

4 To the extent that petitioner has offered non-COV claims in his motions to amend that 5 arguably relate back (i.e., unnumbered claims concerning prosecutorial misconduct regarding 6 alleged false testimony by Ms. Harper and Mr. Turner (relating to claims 1–2) and claim 15 7 (relating to claim 3)), the motions to amend are nevertheless futile because the underlying 8 claims, claims 1–3, lack merit, as described above. With respect to the other non-COV claims in 9 petitioner’s motions, which are untimely (claims 4–14, 16–24, 30), these motions are also futile.
10 Therefore, the Court DENIES Dkts. # 1, # 4, # 9, # 11, # 22, # 27.

1 D. Merits of the COV Claim

2 The government argues that petitioner's COV claim is untimely and procedurally
 3 defaulted. Dkt. # 55 at 13–14, 24–28. The Court presumes, for purposes of this order, that the 4 COV claim is timely²⁵ and that petitioner can overcome procedural default,²⁶ but the Court finds 5 that the COV claim fails on the merits.

7 ²⁵ Section 2253(f)(3) provides that a 1-year limitation period shall run from, as relevant here, 8 “the date on which the right asserted was initially recognized by the Supreme Court, if that right has 9 been newly recognized by the Supreme Court and made retroactively applicable to cases on collateral
 10 review.” Id. The government acknowledges that United States v. Davis, 139 S. Ct. 2319 (2019) applies
 11 retroactively to cases on collateral review, Dkt. # 55 at 24, and there can be no dispute that petitioner’s
 12 assertion of the COV claim was made less than a year after the case was decided. Davis, 139 S. Ct. 2319
 13 (June 24, 2019); Dkt. # 36 (asserting the “Davis claim” on January 6, 2020). The government appears to 14 contend that the COV claim is not timely because (1) it is a second or successive § 2255 claim and (2)
 15 the claim is not asserting rights recognized by the Supreme Court. See Dkts. # 55 at 13 (“It is true that 16 the claim regarding the application of [Davis] . . . would be a timely claim under 28 U.S.C. § 2255(f)(3), 17 if truly based on Davis and no prior motion had been filed.”), # 70 at 3 (“Dorsey’s argument . . . actually 18 depends on the Ninth Circuit’s decision in Begay, not Borden.”).

19 With respect to the first argument regarding timeliness, because petitioner’s earlier-filed petition
 20 has not been finally adjudicated, the COV claim does not constitute a second or successive claim.
Balbuena v. Sullivan, 980 F.3d 619, 635 (9th Cir. 2020), cert. denied sub nom. Balbuena v. Cates, 141
 21 S. Ct. 2755 (June 14, 2021) (mem.). As for the second argument regarding timeliness, at least two 22 district courts have found similar COV claims timely. See Whiting v. United States, No. 3:16-CR-64-02, 23 2021 WL 510152, at *1, 3 (M.D. Pa. Feb. 11, 2021) (finding claim timely where petitioner argued that 24 his predicate offense did not qualify as a “crime of violence” under the “elements clause”), appeal filed,
 25 No. 21-1482 (3d Cir.); Cole v. United States, Nos. 7:19-CV-8030-SLB, 7:03-CR-214-SLB-JEO-1, 2021
 26 WL 1597907, at *5 (N.D. Ala. Apr. 23, 2021) (same).

27 ²⁶ Where a petitioner has procedurally defaulted a claim by failing to raise it on direct review, the 28 claim may be raised in habeas only if the petitioner can first demonstrate either “cause” and “actual 29 prejudice,” or that he is “actually innocent.” Bousley v. United States, 523 U.S. 614, 622–23 (1998). The 30 government’s position is that petitioner has procedurally defaulted the COV claim and cannot overcome
 31 that default. Petitioner did not directly address this issue. See Dkt. # 67. Because petitioner did not 32 attempt to present the COV claim in his direct appeal, see Dorsey, 677 F.3d 944, he has procedurally
 33 defaulted that claim. Various district courts have held that petitioners can establish both cause and actual 34 prejudice for failure to previously raise a Davis-based COV claim where the state of the law at the time
 35 of the respective petitioner’s § 924(c)(3) conviction did not provide a reasonable basis for such a 36 challenge. See, e.g., United States v. Branch, No. 12-cr-00535-PJH-1, 2020 WL 6498968, at *2–3 (N.D.
 37 Cal. Nov. 3, 2020); Whiting, 2021 WL 510152, at *3; but see Granda v. United States, 990 F.3d 1272, 38 1286–88 (11th Cir. 2021) (holding that petitioner could not show cause in spite of the fact that “few, if 39 any, litigants had contended that the § 924(c) residual clause was unconstitutionally vague before the 40 conclusion of [the petitioner’s] appeal”).

Petitioner argues that his conviction for witness tampering in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1512(a)(1)(A), (a)(1)(C), (a)(2)(A) and (a)(2)(C) (Count 21) cannot serve as the predicate offense for his conviction for discharging a firearm during and in relation to a “crime of violence” in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(1)(A) (Count 22). At its core, petitioner’s theory is that witness tampering is not a “crime of violence.” A “crime of violence” is a federal felony offense that either “has as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the person or property of another,” 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(3)(A), or, “by its nature, involves a substantial risk that physical force against the person or property of another may be used in the course of committing the offense,” 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(3)(B). Courts often refer to § 924(c)(3)(A) as the “elements clause”²⁷ and to § 924(c)(3)(B) as the “residual clause.” See, e.g., United States v. Davis, 139 S. Ct. 2319, 2324 (2019).

Although petitioner’s COV claim could be viewed as three different claims to the extent it appears in slightly different forms in three different motions to amend or supplement (and by three different counsel for the petitioner), the core theory remains the same. In 2016, petitioner’s then-counsel, Arturo Menendez, filed a request to amend the petition based on the decision of Johnson v. United States, 576 U.S. 591 (2015), which held unconstitutional the “residual clause” of § 924(e)(2)(B)’s “violent felony” definition, which is extremely similar to the “residual clause” of § 924(c)(3)’s “crime of violence” definition. Dkt. # 18.²⁸ Then in 2020, petitioner’s then-counsel, Suzanne Lee Elliott, filed a request on amend the petition based on the decisions of United States v. Davis, 139 S. Ct. 2319 (2019) and United States v. Begay, 934 F.3d 1033 (2019). Dkt. # 36.²⁹ The Court considers petitioner’s previous motion to amend regarding Johnson (Dkt. # 18), to be subsumed by petitioner’s motion to amend regarding Davis (Dkt. # 36), because Davis extended Johnson’s reasoning to the definition of “crime of violence” in ²⁷ Sometimes this clause is referred to as the “force clause” rather than the “elements clause.” See, e.g., United States v. Howard, 650 F. App’x 466, 468 (9th Cir. 2016), as amended (June 24, 2016).

²⁸ The government numbered this claim 25. Dkt. # 55 at 36.

²⁹ The government numbered this claim 31. Id.

1 § 924(c)(3)(B) (holding the “residual clause” of § 924(c)(3)’s “crime of violence” definition
 2 unconstitutional). See Davis, 139 S. Ct. at 2324; Nakai v. United States, Nos. CV-16-08310-
 3 PCT-DGC, CR-01-01072-01-PCT-DGC, 2021 WL 3560939, at *1 (D. Ariz. Aug. 12, 2021)
 4 (explaining that the Supreme Court “extended” Johnson “to the definition of a ‘crime of 5 violence’ in § 924(c)(3)(B)”). More recently, on July 19, 2021, petitioner’s current counsel filed
 6 a “Motion to Supplement” regarding the advent of Borden v. United States, 141 S. Ct. 1817
 7 (2021). Dkt. # 68. These three motions, Dkts. # 18, # 36, and # 68, all argue that witness
 8 tampering in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1512(a) is not a “crime of violence” for purposes of 18
 9 U.S.C. § 924(c)(3). Petitioner’s most recent motion to supplement “does not alter the previous 10 arguments presented,” but rather cites Borden as further support for its argument that witness
 11 tampering is not a “crime of violence” under § 924(c)(3). Dkt. # 68 at 3. The Court characterizes 12 the arguments of Dkts. # 18, # 36, and # 68 as part of petitioner’s COV claim.

13 Petitioner cannot succeed on the merits of his COV claim if the “elements clause” of 14 § 924(c)(3) provides adequate support to uphold petitioner’s conviction notwithstanding the 15 unconstitutionality of the “residual clause.” The pertinent question is thus whether the predicate 16 offense, witness tampering, constitutes a “crime of violence” under the elements clause in 17 § 924(c)(3)(A). To determine whether a specific conviction constitutes a “crime of violence,” the 18 Court employs the “categorical approach” set forward in Taylor v. United States, 495 U.S. 575
 19 (1990) and Descamps v. United States, 570 U.S. 254 (2013). See United States v. Benally, 843
 20 F.3d 350, 352 (9th Cir. 2016).

21 The first task is to identify the relevant elements of the offense under the witness 22 tampering statute: 18 U.S.C. § 1512. This statute is divisible, “i.e., comprises multiple,
 23 alternative versions of the crime.” Descamps, 570 U.S. at 262. “For instance, § 1512(a)(1)
 24 requires proof of a killing or an attempt to kill. Section 1512(a)(2) does not.” United States v.
Stuker, No. CR 11-096-BLG-DLC, 2021 WL 2354568, at *6 (D. Mont. June 9, 2021), appeal filed, No. 21-35466 (9th Cir.); see also United States v. Music, No. 1:09CR00003-003, 2019
 WL 2337392, at *5 (W.D. Va. June 3, 2019) (concluding that § 1512 is a divisible statute), 28 appeal filed, No. 19-7010 (4th Cir.). Therefore, the Court uses the “modified categorical
 ORDER ON PETITIONER’S 28 U.S.C. § 2255 PETITION
 AND RELATED MOTIONS - 24

1 approach” to determine the petitioner’s statute of conviction, whereby the Court is permitted to 2 consult the trial record, including charging documents and jury instructions. See Stuker, 2021
 3 WL 2354568, at *9 (applying the “modified categorical” approach to evaluating a witness
 4 tampering conviction); Music, 2019 WL 2337392, at *5 (same); Johnson v. United States, 559
 5 U.S. 133, 144 (2010) (“[T]he ‘modified categorical approach’ . . . permits a court to determine
 6 which statutory phrase was the basis for the conviction by consulting the trial record—including 7 charging documents . . . jury instructions and verdict forms.”). Petitioner’s indictment refers to 8 “Title 18, United States Code, Sections 1512(a)(1)(A) and (C) and (a)(2)(A) and (C).” CR Dkt.
 9 # 166 at 13. The jury instructions further clarify the matter. The Court instructed the jury as 10 follows:

11 The defendant is charged in Count 1 of the Indictment with Witness 12 Tampering, in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 1512. In order for 13 the defendant to be found guilty of that charge, the government must prove each of 14 the following elements in one of the two theories below, beyond a reasonable 15 doubt, with all of you agreeing as to which theory the government has proved 16 beyond a reasonable doubt:

17 Theory One:

18 First, on or about May 13, 2008, the defendant knowingly did attempt to 19 kill Martine Fullard as defined in Instruction No. 21; and 20 Second, the defendant acted with the intent to prevent the attendance or 21 testimony of Martine Fullard in an official proceeding, to wit: a federal grand jury.

22 Theory Two:

23 You may also find the defendant guilty of the charge of Witness Tampering
 24 as charged in Count 1 if the government proves each of the following elements
 25 beyond a reasonable doubt:

26 First, the defendant knowingly did use physical force against Martine
 27 Fullard;

28 Second, the defendant acted with the intent to influence, delay, or prevent 29 the testimony of Martine Fullard in an official proceeding, to wit: a federal grand 30 jury.

31 You must be unanimous as to which of the two theories above the 32 government has proved beyond a reasonable doubt.

33 CR Dkt. # 382 at 21. In other words, the relevant elements of 18 U.S.C. § 1512 for petitioner’s
 34 conviction are set forward below:

1 (a)

2 (1) Whoever kills or attempts to kill another person, with intent to—
 3 (A) prevent the attendance or testimony of any person in an official
 4 proceeding

5 (2) Whoever uses physical force or the threat of physical force against any 6 person, or attempts to do so, with intent to— 7 (A) influence, delay, or prevent the testimony of any person in an 8 official proceeding

9 18 U.S.C. § 1512(a) (emphasis added).

10 Petitioner contends that witness tampering cannot be a “crime of violence” under the 11 elements clause, § 924(c)(3)(A), “because it does not have as an element the use, attempted use, 12 or threatened use of ‘physical force.’” Dkt. # 68. This is plainly untrue for theory two, relying 13 upon § 1512(a)(2), which applies to those who use “physical force against any person.”³⁰ As

14 ³⁰ In a footnote, petitioner articulates his position that § 1512(a)(2) can be employed through 15 reckless conduct because “use of physical force,” for purposes of the witness tampering statute, can be 16 accomplished by “physical action against another, and includes confinement.” 18 U.S.C. § 1515(a)(2).
 17 Dkt. # 71 at 3 n.1. Petitioner’s argument lacks support. The cases petitioner cites do not conclude that 18 “physical action against another” or “confinement” fall short of the type of force required for a “crime of 19 violence.” Johnson, 559 U.S. 133 (referring neither to the terms “physical action” or “confinement”);
 20 United States v. Gutierrez, 876 F.3d 1254 (9th Cir. 2017) (same); Borden, 141 S. Ct. 1817 (same).
 21 Based on Borden, the key phrase “against another” modifies the volitional act (“physical action”) and 22 demands that the “perpetrator direct his action at, or target, another individual.” See Borden, 141 S. Ct.
 23 at 1825 (analyzing how “against another” modifies “use of force”). “Reckless conduct is not aimed in 24 that prescribed manner.” Id. Although one might argue that the word “confinement” signals something 25 short of a “volitional” or ‘active’ employment of force,” id., the Court finds persuasive the reasoning of 26 another district court in this Circuit, which concluded that “[b]y referring to ‘confinement’ in context
 27 with ‘physical force’ and ‘physical action,’ Congress indicated an act of physically restricting a person’s
 28 freedom of movement, not merely convincing or cajoling someone to stay put.” Stuker, 2021 WL 2354568, at *5.

29 Additionally, petitioner’s first iteration of the COV claim argued that § 924(c)(3) “speaks to the 30 use of ‘physical force,’ but does not do so in the context of ‘violence.’” Dkt. # 18 at 13. Petitioner cited
Johnson as interpreting “physical force” under § 924(e)(2)(B)(i) to mean “violent force,” in “the context 31 of a statutory definition of ‘violent felony.’” Johnson, 559 U.S. at 140. Section 924(c)(3) also refers to 32 “physical force” in the context of a statutory definition employing the concept of violence: a “crime of 33 violence.” 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(3) (emphasis added) (“For purposes of this subsection the term ‘crime of 34 violence’ means an offense that is a felony and”). Petitioner’s argument is not persuasive.

1 for theory one, relying upon § 1512(a)(1),³¹ petitioner argues that “the underlying conviction
 2 for witness tampering does not satisfy the [elements clause] because it could [have] been 3 committed through second degree murder, which requires a mens rea of recklessness.”³² Dkt.
 4 # 68 at 3 (relying upon Borden); Dkt. # 36 at 9 (arguing that because Begay held “that second-
 5 degree murder does not categorically qualify as a ‘crime of violence’ under Section 924(c)(3), 6 because it can be committed recklessly,” that petitioner’s conviction must be reversed). The 7 Supreme Court recently held that a criminal offense that requires only a mens rea of 8 recklessness cannot count as a “violent felony” under the elements clause of § 924(e)(2)(B), 9 Borden, 141 S. Ct. at 1821, which is identical to § 924(c)(3)’s elements clause, except that 10 § 924(e)(2)(B)’s clause does not apply to property. Compare 18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(3)(A) with 18
 11 U.S.C. § 924(e)(2)(B)(i).

12 Petitioner fails to address the government’s argument that attempted murder establishes 13 the necessary mens rea for a “crime of violence.”³³ Under federal law, an attempt to commit a 14 crime requires a “specific intent to commit the crime attempted, even when the statute [does] 15 not contain an explicit intent requirement.” United States v. Gracidas-Ulibarry, 231 F.3d 1188, 16 1192 (9th Cir. 2000) (en banc). And while “a murder may be committed without an intent to 17 kill, an attempt to commit murder requires a specific intent to kill.” Braxton v. United States,

18
 19 ³¹ It is unknown whether the jury based its verdict on theory one or theory two. Thus, the Court must consider both theories.

20 ³² Petitioner’s first iteration of the COV claim argued that killing or attempting to kill a person is 21 not a “crime of violence” for purposes of § 924(c)(3) because “no physical force is required,” citing 22 poisoning as an example. Dkt. # 18 at 12. The Supreme Court has rejected the notion that the use of 23 poison does not involve the use of force. United States v. Castleman, 572 U.S. 157, 170–71 (2014).
 Petitioner’s argument must fail accordingly.

24 ³³ Petitioner appears to be under the impression that the underlying murder had to be of the first
 25 degree, i.e., premeditated, in order to meet the requisite mens rea for a “crime of violence,” see Dkt. # 71 26 at 2–3 (complaining that “the jury was not instructed that the underlying murder had to be 27 premeditated”), but petitioner neglects to consider the import of what it means to attempt to commit
 28 murder. Petitioner’s citation to recent unpublished post-Borden Ninth Circuit decisions is unavailing, see
 Dkt. # 71 at 3–4, because these decisions concern the offense of second degree murder, not the offense of attempt to commit murder. United States v. Young, No. 19-50355, 2021 WL 3201103 (9th Cir. July 28, 2021); United States v. Mejia-Quintanilla, 857 Fed. App’x 956 (9th Cir. 2021).

1 500 U.S. 344, 351 n.* (1991). Thus, in order for petitioner to have been convicted under theory
 2 one, the jury was required to find that petitioner intended to kill Ms. Fullard. See CR Dkt. # 382
 3 at 22 (“To establish the first element of Theory One in Instruction No. 20, that the defendant
 4 knowingly did attempt to kill Martine Fullard, the government must prove each of the 5 following elements beyond a reasonable doubt; First the defendant intended to kill Martine
 6 Fullard.”). The Court finds that committing witness tampering by attempting to kill a person is 7 categorically a “crime of violence” under § 924(c)(3)’s elements clause. See Music, 2019 WL
 8 2337392 at *5 (finding that “committing federal witness tampering by attempting to kill a 9 person is categorically a crime of violence” under § 924(c)(3)’s elements clause); West v.
 10 United States, Nos. 2:16-cv-05666, 2:07-cr-00052, 2019 WL 6873009, at *6 (S.D.W. Va. July 11 31, 2019) (recommending that the presiding District Judge find that witness tampering via 12 “killing or attempted killing, is a crime of violence” under § 924(c)(3)’s elements clause),
 13 report and recommendation adopted, Nos. 2:16-cv-05666, 2:07-CR-00052, 2019 WL 4132437
 14 (S.D.W. Va. Aug. 29, 2019), appeal dismissed, No. 19-7613, 2020 WL 2036594 (4th Cir. Feb.
 15 12, 2020). Therefore, the Court finds that the elements clause provides adequate support to 16 uphold petitioner’s conviction. Because Dkts. # 18, # 36, and # 68 are all part of petitioner’s
 17 COV claim, which cannot succeed on the merits, the Court DENIES these motions to amend 18 accordingly.

19 VI. MOTION FOR DISCOVERY (DKT. # 28)

20 Petitioner seeks discovery of phone records of Detective Mooney pursuant to Rule 6 of 21 the Rules Governing Section 2255 Proceedings (Dkt. # 28). Under Rule 6(a), “[a] judge may, for 22 good cause, authorize a party to conduct discovery under the Federal Rules of Criminal 23 Procedure or Civil Procedure, or in accordance with the practices and principles of law.” Rule 24 6(a), Rules Governing Section 2255 Proceedings. Because the Court denies all of the motions to 25 amend containing claims regarding Detective Mooney (claims 8–10, 19), where such claims did 26 not satisfy the “relation back” standard, see supra Parts V.A, V.C, petitioner would be unable to 27 demonstrate that he is entitled to relief using the discovery he seeks. Therefore, the Court finds 28

1 that no good cause exists to authorize the discovery requested, and the Court DENIES 2 petitioner's motion seeking discovery (Dkt. # 28).
